Federal School Aid

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

President Eisenhower's one-billion-dollar educational program has hardly acquired its first thin layer of dust in congressional files, but wise heads already are raising the question whether the law makers will in fact vote any educational program at all this year.

Why should this doubt exist when America's school crisis has been emblazoned across the nation and every last legislator has heard the imperative cry for action?

According to veteran Washington observers, the barriers to action are a series of highly controversial issues that have long plagued any sort of federal education bills.

One is the matter of whether aid to schools should be limited to public institutions or include private and parochial types. A second involves the perennial effort of some congressmen to block aid to segregated schools.

Then there are many lawmakers who worry whether federal school aid must necessarily carry with it some degree of federal control over institutions regarded as within the area of state authority.

No one dares to minimize the heat which these issues can generate in the halls of Congress.

But if, in the present widely understood educational peril, they are to become stumbling blocks to action again, one is compelled to ask what kind of emergency is required before lawmakers will put demonstrated vital national needs above all else.

Many top educators and other leading national figures think the crisis is as severe right now as it can get. If it is, then lawmakers who will vote down a broad educational program would seem to place themselves in a very dubious position as regards the national interest.

It will be a dismal day in this country when pressing national concerns can no longer surmount secondary issues, when lawmakers can no longer find sensible ways of resolving their legitimate doubts. Should that happen to this Congress in 1958, one would be tempted to believe the legislators may have borrowed a few French lawmakers as advisors. For the French have become the world's pre-eminent experts at elevating secondary considerations to first place.

This is a time, in education as in many other matters, to show that we know what is important and what is not.

Gov. Stratton Dims Prospects of Calling Special Legislative Session

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (Special)—Prospects of a special session of the Illinois Legislature before the regular 1959 Assembly, have been dimmed by Gov. William G. Stratton. The Governor, in response to a question at a recent press conference regarding a special call to broaden the curriculum of one of the state's universities, said he had no such plans.

He had been requested to call a special session to broaden the curriculum of Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, to include engineering for the purpose of supplying more scientists to strengthen the United States in developing its missile program. The Governor dismissed the inquiry with the statement that "I get calls for special sessions every day."

The call for a special session to expand Southern Illinois' curriculum to include engineering appears to have fallen flat in other quarters as well as with the Chief Executive. Sen. R. G. Cisenberry, R., Murphysboro, who is as eager as any to add more professional courses to the Carbondale school, pointed out the legislature rejected his bill at the last session to add engineering.

"If we couldn't get a straight majority vote in 1957 to add engineering to Southern Illinois' educational program how could we expect to get the required two-thirds approval at a special session?" asked Cisenberry. "No doubt we will try again at the 1959 session and may be successful." (In the 1955 session Cisenberry was successful in adding agriculture to the school's curriculum.)

ernor Stratton's mail. They include for instance requests that he call one to deal with truck splash guards, segregation, county tax multipliers, amendment of the state sales (use) tax to eliminate the levy on trade-ins for new articles and by small truckers objecting to having certain equipment on their vehicles.

The splash guard request is in connection with the state law requiring trucks to be equipped with the much-protested 1955 contour splash guards. The law has been further involved in controversy by a recent Sangamon county circuit court decision holding a 1957 amendment exempting farm trucks and other off-highway trucks unconstitutional.

The amendment was sponsored by Rep. Paul Powell, D., Vienna. It exempted farm, dump, cement and certain other trucks from the provisions of the 1955 law which Powell also sponsored, and which had been held valid by the state supreme court. The amendment was intended to meet objections of agriculturists and other groups.

Meanwhile out-of-state truckers have obtained an injunction from U. S. District Judge Charles G. Briggie at Springfield to restrain the state from enforcement of the entire act. Truckers from New Mexico, Nevada and Nebraska obtained the injunction. They claim the law is a burden on interstate commerce.

Another request for a special session asks for repeal of a law which requires small trucks to be equipped with rear vision mirrors and two rear lights. The request says truckers cannot understand why vehicles used only in the day time and for short distances must have such equipment. Usually it is from farmers who make little use of highways and only in day time.

Most requests for a special session to rewrite the state law giving the State Revenue Department power to fix property tax multipliers for each county, come from lawyers. They claim current multipliers force increased taxes on many counties by multiplying assessed values of properties, where the department finds assessed values considerably lower than the actual values.

Special session requests dealing with segregation were heavy during last year's Little Rock, Ark., incident. They came from various minority groups. One asked for an investigation as to why whites in southern Illinois reportedly send their children to schools in Kentucky where an Illinois school enrollment includes Negro pupils.

Prospects of a special session to provide more funds for general assistance loomed large recently but now appear to have dwindled. The Illinois Public Aid Commission recently reported that growing unemployment might force a special session but this was lessened later as the Commission reported it would be able to get through 1958 with its present appropriation.

Accidents Cost 95,000 Lives

CHICAGO (UP)—The year 1957 was a bad one for the careless and the unwary, the National Safety Council said today.

Accidents, the council estimated, took 95,000 lives in the United States.

Highways had the highest accident toll. Homes were next.

Council statisticians sought a grain of comfort in their figures, which estimated 9,500,000 injured and a cost of $11,800,000,000, in addition to the dead, from accidents in 1957.

They found it in the accident rate. Because the population grew, the death rate came down to 55.8, an all time low since the council started figuring its statistics.

Motor vehicle deaths declined in 1957 from 1956, but still led the parade of cases, 38,500. Home accidents took 37,500 lives, accidents at work killed 14,200, and public accidents, not motor vehicle, 18,000. The council noted that the motor vehicle totals included some also shown as work and home deaths.

Deaths to children under 5 years old declined 1 per cent from 1956. Of all the accidental deaths, falls killed 20,000; burns 6,700; drownings 6,700; firearms, 2,250.

Soviet Paper Accuses Diplomats Of 'Hooliganism'

MOSCOW (UP)—A Communist newspaper accused a group of American, British and Canadian diplomats today of "hooliganism" in a tourist hotel and on a train in the Soviet Union.

The charges appeared in the young Communist Party organ "Komsomolskaya Pravda." Observers did not know whether the charges were serious enough to warrant expulsion of the diplomats.

The newspaper identified the diplomats as Col. Thomas W. Wolfe, the U. S. air attaché, and Maj. Charles J. Portaluppi, his assistant, Squadron Leader Laurence V. Dale, the assistant British air attaché, and "Canadian Attaché Sidney Mitchell."

Komsomolskaya Pravda said reports on their behavior on a train from Tiflis to Baku were received in a letter from "candidate of sciences Svetitskiy" which it published. It said further derogatory information came from hotel officials at an inn-tourist hotel at Tiflis.

It said the train incident occurred Jan. 14.

Komsomolskaya Pravda quoted the scientist as saying he "became the object of shocking hooligan behavior by a man who subsequently turned out to be the U. S. air attaché in the U. S. S. R., Thomas Wolfe."

Tips on Traffic Safety

By CHARLES F. CARPENTIER, Secretary of State

Too often, many motorists forget to leave an adequate distance between their vehicle and the auto they are following. Such a maneuver can easily result in a serious collision. The standard rule for following a vehicle is to allow a car length for every ten miles per hour of speed at which the motorist is traveling. Thus, if you are traveling at a rate of forty miles per hour, there should be an interval of four car lengths between your car and the car in front of you.

By following too closely the motorist ignores the possibility that the driver in front of him may be called upon to make an emergency stop and that a rear-end collision could result.

Then, too, there is the possibility that the driver being trailed too closely will become annoyed and attempt to shake off the pursuing vehicle and, as a result, rush into a collision.

It is quite easy, when driving in heavy traffic, to forget to leave a safe distance between your auto and the vehicle which you are trailing. However, we must be ever on the alert to this hazard if we are to prevent a serious rear-end collision.

N.Y. Suspending Pupils Charged With Violence

NEW YORK — School officials today began suspending pupils charged with criminal violence in an effort to rid classes of young hoodlums and "protect the innocent."

Spurred by new outbreaks of beatings and stabbings, and under fresh pressure from a grand jury to take "prompt emergency action," the Board of Education ordered that any pupils "charged with a violation of law involving violence or insubordination shall be forthwith suspended from regular school attendance."

Preliminary unofficial estimates indicated up to 600 pupils might be affected.

The school board was said to have adopted its new policy as the immediate result of two incidents Wednesday in which a school monitor was stabbed by a fellow student and another monitor was beaten unconscious by three other pupils.

The beating and stabbing were the latest incidents in a wave of teen-age violence that has included two rapes inside schools.

A few hours before the suspension order was issued, a grand jury that has been investigating school violence in Brooklyn handled up a fifth presentment critical of school policies in handling juvenile delinquency. The jury urged a broader policy on weeding out lawless youths from the schools and declared "prompt emergency action is necessary."

Noting that a previous Board of Education statement had said less than one per cent of the school system's nearly one million pupils were problem children, the grand jury said "this means there are nearly 100,000 serious aggressive and disruptive children" menacing the remainder.

Protestant Churches to Join Sunday in Prayer for Solution to Racial Tensions

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent

Thousands of Protestant churches across the nation will join Sunday in prayer for a Christian solution of America's racial tensions.

The occasion is the annual observance of "Race Relations Sunday," sponsored by the National Council of Churches.

A special message, to be read from the pulpits of participating churches, emphasizes that Jesus drew no color line when he gave his followers the commandment
"You shall love your neighbor as yourself."

Obedience to this commandment in America today, the message says, means actively supporting "those who seek freedom and justice in the face of discrimination and segregation."

The message suggests four specific ways in which local churches and individual Christians can act to improve race relations:

1. Welcome people of all races into membership in the church and its organizations and make this fact known in the community.
2. Support "constructive" measures for integration of public schools, and firmly oppose any attempt—by legislation or "mob violence"—to circumvent federal law.

3. Cooperate with other community agencies in breaking down racial barriers in housing.

4. Urge elimination of segregation on buses and other transportation facilities.

Hungary's famed Lutheran bishop, Lajos Ordass, is under heavy attack by his country's controlled Communist press Church leaders of other countries see ominous similarities between the present campaign of vilification and the one which preceded his arrest in 1948 on trumped-up charges of currency manipulation.

Ordass was released in October, 1956, shortly before the Hungarian freedom revolt. After the revolt was crushed by Russian troops, he was ousted from his post as presiding bishop of the Hungarian Lutheran Church, but was allowed to remain as head of the church's Southern District.

Ordass has stood aloof from the state-appointed "bishops" who have been imposed on the Hungarian Lutheran Church by the Communist government. His name was conspicuously absent from their recent joint declaration recognizing the "divinely ordained supreme authority of the state."

The leader of the world's oldest Protestant sect, the Walden-sian Church of Italy, is visiting in the United States.

Dr. Achille Deodato, moderator of the Waldensians, came to Washington last week end to speak before several groups which have given financial support to his church, which was founded in the 12th Century and now claims about 26,000 members in Italy.

Deodato said that recent court decisions are helping Italian Protestants to actually exercise the religious freedoms which were promised to them by Italy's post-war Constitution. He said it is now possible for Protestants to hold religious meetings in rented halls without notifying police beforehand, or to open their own premises to public worship without requesting authorization.

Protestant and Orthodox churches of the United States will be asked to contribute $10,428,000 in 1958 to support the global programs of relief for the hungry and homeless which they carry on cooperatively through church world service.

Much of the money will come from contributions of individual church members during "one great hour of sharing" on Sunday morning, March 16. Special collections for church world service will be taken up then in thousands of participating local churches.

Church world service distributes food, clothing, medical supplies and other aid directly to needy families in 50 countries.

Matter of FACT

It took Noah Webster 20 years to prepare his first dictionary of the English language. For 10 of those years, Webster studied English and its connection with other languages. Another year was spent in Europe before the dictionary was completed in 1827. The dictionary, first published in 1828, contained 12,000 words and 40,000 definitions that had never appeared in any similar work before.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D. (Written for NEA Service)

Bravery is not always easy when we are alone. A little child backed by his parents is brave enough to face an ocean, but when he is alone he hesitates to get into a bath tub. The reasons may be different but the illustration still holds water.

We need the backing of God if we are going to be brave enough to battle the forces of temptation and evil which lurk within our minds. When these temptations are made glamorous by our fellowmen we find our personal bravery pretty weak.

There is no real bravery except in the fellowship of others whether the strength which comes from outside ourselves is real or imagined. When it is imagined our bravery is frequently of little avail.

The bravery of the soul backed by God will see us through many battles which we should otherwise have no chance of winning.

The Panamint Mountains are in California and form the west wall of Death Valley.

Tommy, Mr. and Mrs. Volle McDermott and Art, Connie Fodor, Rev. and Mrs. Louie Stricklin and granddaughter, Cheryl Stricklin, Clara Hatcher and daughter, Cora Lou, and Rev. Wendell Brogan.

Committee Named to Select Slate Of Officers for Historical Society

At the February meeting of the Saline County Historical Society held Tuesday evening at the library, a nominating committee was appointed and will submit a slate of officers to be elected in March. The committee is composed of Don Scott, chairman, Mrs. Clarence Bosket, James T. Garner, John Foster, and William Farley.

Two duet numbers were sung by Lorna Jane Dallas and Charles Rann, accompanied by Larry Edwards. Their professional interpretation reflected credit to their teacher, Mrs. P. W. Sherman.

Mrs. Ralph Brown Sr., guest speaker, began her review of "Biography of a Marriage" by saying, "Forget all the things that you have heard in regard to Mary Todd." "Forget them," added Mrs. Brown, "because most of them are erroneous. She hastened to explain that our mistaken ideas have come to us directly or indirectly from Lincoln's one time law partner, Herndon. Mr. Herndon, a backwoods lawyer, never liked the "stuck up" Mary Todd and could find nothing that she did to his liking. Also at this time he had begun to delve into psychoanalysis and as an amateur in the field came to many mistaken conclusions. Herndon's biographer either intentionally or unintentionally failed to distinguish between actual facts and attempts by Herndon to psychoanalyze. So these mistaken ideas have come down to us, Mrs. Brown said. Robert Lincoln came so embittered by the public's acceptance of such drive that he refused to permit personal letters and diaries of his father to be made public until 1947. Five years before this the Herndon papers were made public for the first time.

On careful study of both sets of papers historians have been able to get the true story. The Ann Rutledge tale and many other legends have been exploded. Actual facts, unmarred by personalities have taken their place. Mrs. Ruth Randall, the author, believes that to Lincoln "Love Was Eternal."

Mrs. Brown's vivid and stimulating review was greatly appreciated by those present. She insisted that she had only given the minimum highlights of "Biography of a Marriage" and that each should read the scholarly documented book for himself.

From a beautifully decorated table refreshments were served to the group by Mrs. John Foster, chairman of the social hour.

Maloney Quits as Engineers' Chief; AFL-CIO to Continue Union Probe

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO high command appeared ready today to continue an investigation of the Operating Engineers Union even though its president resigned in the face of corruption charges.

Ailing, aged William E. Maloney resigned his $50,000 a year job Thursday and cleared the way for Engineers Secretary-Treasurer Joseph J. Delaney to succeed him.

Maloney, 77, said his doctor warned him he would die unless he gave up the office he held since 1940.

Senate racket investigators have described Maloney as a virtual dictator who became a rich man at the expense of rank and file members of his 270,000-member union.

Delaney said he would be a candidate when the Engineers' 11-man executive board meets here next week to elect a new president. Sources close to the union said he would be a shoo-in for the job.

Some sources said the committee wanted a closer look at Delaney, 61, a member of the union for 39 years and a vice president since he was elected on Maloney's slate in 1940.

Delaney succeeded Joe Fay as eastern district representative of the Engineers in 1946, two years before Fay was sent to jail for shaking down a contractor.

Testimony before the Senate committee revealed that Fay received $268,000 from a Newark, N. J. local to pay his legal fee, his pension and a stipend to his wife while he was in prison.

A New York state insurance department hearing in 1953 showed that Delaney was a partner in an insurance agency which allegedly drained off $250,000 from welfare funds of 12 unions. Delaney and an aide reportedly received $350 a week from the agency.

Civil Defense Meeting On Disaster Planning at Anna Hospital Feb. 23

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois office of Civil Defense announced a civil defense meeting on disaster planning in the space age will be held Feb. 23 at Anna State hospital in Anna.

The office said Thursday that guest speakers will include D. W. Morris, president of Southern Illinois University.

Break Up Auto Big 3, Union Power, Congress Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Motors President George Romney today called on Congress to break up the automotive big three and limit the power of the giant unions like the United Auto Workers.

Romney said in testimony before the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee that this division should be made to create new competition and open the door to lower prices, higher employment and improved products.

"The economic size and influence of the big three is now so far reaching that their policy decisions are potentially capable of producing prosperity or depression for the nation," he said.

Romney outlined his plan for eliminating monopoly power by one or two companies over an industry.

He said a company engaged in more than one basic industry should be limited to 25 per cent of total industry sales and 35 per cent for a company tied in with only one industry.

"If the 35 per cent and 25 per cent provisions were applied to the automobile business, General Motors and Ford would each become the sources of new companies," Romney said.

But the AMC president hastened to add that this division would not hurt those connected with the companies. He said General Motors and Ford "stockholders, executives, employees and customers could reasonably be expected to benefit as did those of Standard Oil."

Roof Collapses on Marion Warehouse

MARION, Ill. (AP) — Damage has been estimated at $10,000 in the collapse of the roof of the Pepsi-Cola bottling warehouse here. There were no injuries.

Owner Harry Crisp blamed the collapse on wet snow that had accumulated on the roof of the 40 by 80 foot building. The concrete block walls were pushed out when the roof collapsed late Thursday afternoon.

Crisp discounted earlier reports of an explosion in the building. He said there was nothing in the building to explode. The building contained advertising material.

Crisp said there was no insurance to cover the loss and that he would rebuild the warehouse as soon as weather permits.

Senator Gore Demands Gov't Act On Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) declared today "it is high time" the government takes note of danger signals in the national economy and acts to stave off a serious depression.

The Tennessee Democrat gave this run down of the economy: —Four or five million persons are jobless.

—"Many more millions" are working only a few days a week.

—Steel production is down to 60 per cent.

—Farm prices are at a "critical" level.

—The bankruptcy rate is the highest in history and businesses are failing at a greater rate than in 1933.

"Fortunately," he said, "we have research strength, resources, programs and experience with which to prevent such a catastrophe. It is high time we were using some of these measures, particularly a full employment act to which both parties are committed."

The senator spoke as thousands of persons were reported forming in "breadlines" in Memphis Tenn. Free food was being distributed in the recession-hit steel town of Lorain, Ohio.

Thursday, a group of Senate Democrats attacked President Eisenhower's economic policies, accusing him of "whistling in the dark" and failing to deal "decisively" with the business skid.

Sen. Pat McNamara (D-Mich.) proposed an 11-point anti-recession program including tax cuts for individuals and small businesses.

Other developments: —Chairman William McC. Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board warned the Joint Congressional Economic Committee against over-enthusiastic efforts to bolster the economy. Martin agreed with President Eisenhower that business will pick up within a few months.

He said the economy "is suffering from indigestion or over-exertion" but Americans "don't have anything to worry about."

Illinois GOP Women Oppose Summit Meeting

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois Federation of Republican Women Thursday read into the record vigorous opposition to a new summit meeting with Russia and "Prussian-type" unification of the defense commands.

The Federation, meeting here to celebrate the 18th anniversary of its organization, adopted a number of resolutions outlining its position.

One resolution commended Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for his "courageous stand against another summit conference with the butchers of Budapest" and urged the secretary to "continue to resist neutralist and coexistence propaganda" for new summit conferences.

Another resolution said "Sputniks are being used as a pretext to abolish our independent military commands and to substitute the Prussian system of an all-powerful chief of staff." It commended Rep. Leslie C. Arends (R-Ill.) for his stand against a single chief of staff for the armed forces.

The women's group also urged that "any additional military expenditures" required by new defense needs "be financed by a reduction in foreign aid, which has failed to buy friends or to slow down the rapid advance of Communism."

Copies of the resolutions were sent to President Eisenhower, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.), and Illinois Republicans in Congress.

Contest in Virginia

Miss Christina Baker, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cummins of the Ingram Hill community, was the winner in her division of the James A. Bland Memorial contest for music talent Jan. 28, sponsored by the Williamsburg, Va., Lions club. Miss Baker represented the Walsingham Academy where she is a sophomore and she sang, "A Heart That's Free," a semi-classical piece by Robyn.

Miss Baker is the daughter of Mrs. G. E. Crane, F. Eustis, Va., and the late Raymond S. Baker. She spent much of her childhood with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Cummins and attended the McKinley school and the Horace Mann school in Harrisburg. She visited with her grandparents last Christmas.

She was the piano pupil of Mrs. Perry Moore when she was in Harrisburg.

As a winner in the Bland music contest, she is now eligible for state wide competition, this spring, for a $350 music scholarship.

Fluorspar Consumption at All-Time High; Domestic Production Declines

J. Blecheisen, president of the Rosiclare Lead and Fluorspar Mining company, whose fluorspar mines, the oldest in America, are located in southeastern Illinois along the Ohio river, today performed an economic dissection of America's fluorspar industry as it fared in 1957, before nearly 1000 members of the National Western Mining Conference at the Shirley Savoy hotel in Denver, Colo.

Mr. Blecheisen cataloged the consumption, imports, and domestic production of the fluorspar industry, offering statistics which showed that United States consumption of fluorspar reached an all-time high of 660,000 tons in 1957, up 10 per cent from 1956, and up 50 per cent from 1950, paralleled by the sensational and increasingly rising foreign imports, principally from Mexico or nearly 620,000 tons in 1957, up almost 30 per cent from 1956, and up 150 per cent from 1950—while domestic production totaling 325,000 tons in 1957 declined nearly 2 per cent from 1956, thus continuing for another year the domestic fluorspar industry's depressed economic condition because of foreign imports, despite the domestic industry's ore reserves and milling capacity sufficient to meet America's consumption.

Mr. Blecheisen noted that the total of domestic production in 1957, 325,000 tons, and the foreign imports of 620,000 tons, exceeded the United States consumption in 1957. The excess represents shipments to the Federal Government's stockpile, about half the excess being foreign fluorspar and the other half domestic fluorspar. Consumption is estimated, by Mr. Blecheisen, to rise to one million tons per year by 1960, up 50 per cent from 1957 consumption, to be generated by the new and growing usage of acid grade fluorspar in the chemical industry for fluoro-carbons aluminum, elemental fluorine for high energy fuel oxidants, and hydrofluoric acid for use in America's six atomic energy plants, and the new General Chemical uranium hexafluoride plant at Metropolis, where General Chemical will process uranium oxide for the Atomic Energy Commission. Fluorspar, a fluorine bearing, non-metallic mineral, is also used in steel, glass and porcelain enamel.

"Whether the domestic fluorspar operators will be able to participate in this increasing commercial market for fluorspar, depends on their ability to survive the crushing onslaught of high foreign imports of fluorspar, the impact of which has been steadily and clearly apparent since 1950," concluded Mr. Blecheisen.

Mr. Blecheisen noted that the total of domestic production in 1957, 325,000 tons, and the foreign imports of 620,000 tons, exceeded the United States consumption in 1957. The excess represents shipments to the Federal Government's stockpile, about half the excess being foreign fluorspar and the other half domestic fluorspar. Consumption is estimated, by

Wife Says Haiti Offer Inadequate For Mate's Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wife of an American slain by two Haitian army officers says Haiti's offer of $100,000 for his death is "very inadequate."

Mrs. Shibly Jean Talamas, Ash-tabula, Ohio, said "It certainly can not pay me for the loss of my husband and it can't support me and my child the way my husband could have."

Mrs. Talamas made the comment at her home after the State Department announced Thursday the United States and Haiti had reached an agreement through an exchange of notes that settled the matter.

Talamas was beaten to death in the Haitian capital of Port-au-Prince on Sept. 29, 1957.

Department spokesman Lincoln White said the government of Haiti had court-martialed two army officers involved in the incident.

The Haitian government's note said the Haitian army officers had arrested Talamas for questioning in connection with a murder of a Haitian citizen in a town about 20 miles from Port-au-Prince. The note explained that the army officers had been instructed not to mistreat Talamas.

However, the note said, the officers admitted during a court-martial that while defending themselves from Talamas, they beat him with clubs. The officers said that Talamas died immediately from a heart attack brought on from the beating.

Air Force to Launch Titan ICBM Missile, Adaptable for Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force said today it will launch some time this year an intercontinental ballistic missile, the Titan whose power plant is "particularly adaptable" to exploration of space.

The Titan, a 5,000-mile weapon under development as companion to the Air Force's Atlas ICBM, has never had a test flight so far.

Plans to stage the first Titan test flight this year were disclosed by Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas in testimony before the House Armed Services Committee. He testified as:

—Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said the United States is on the threshold of "exciting developments" in space.

—An atomic expert predicted development of nuclear rockets for propulsion of spacecraft.

Douglas told the House committee that the Titan's power plant is "particularly adaptable" not only for launching big satellites but for exploring the depths of the solar system.

The Air Force already has staged four test-firings of the Atlas, whose designed range also is 5,000 miles. Development of the Titan started about a year after the Atlas.

Douglas said Atlas tests will continue "at an accelerated pace."

He repeated that the first operational Atlas unit "will be in place" by December, 1959.

Turning to space research, Douglas said it appears that the Air Force now has rocket engines which, in combination, could send "sizeable manned and un-manned" space vehicles into orbit around the earth and provide power for craft to explore space beyond the moon.

"Such projects will take time," Douglas said. "But the significant thing is that we believe we have the important tools now to undertake them as may be desirable."

Other developments: —Navy Vanguard scientists hunted more parts of its exploded carrier rocket to see why it failed Wednesday.

—The government published a "survival" list of more than 200 items ranging from milk to plague vaccine that would be needed to sustain the population in the event of nuclear attack.

—The House stamped final congressional approval on an emergency bill carrying $140,000,000 to speed U. S. missile programs, disperse the nation's H-bomber fleet and build anti-rocket defenses.

—The measure, which also provided funds for a third intercontinental missile base and three rocket-firing atomic submarines, was sent to President Eisenhower just one day short of a month after he urgently requested it.

Dulles Meets Soviet Envoy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and new Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov voiced hope today that relations between the United States and Russia "can be improved."

After a brief get-acquainted meeting, the two diplomats said an improvement in American-Soviet relations would benefit both countries and "the interests of the world."

No date was set immediately for Menshikov to present his credentials to President Eisenhower. Chances are the meeting will be arranged early next week before the President leaves on Wednesday for vacation.

Menshikov already has been invited to a diplomatic reception at the White House Tuesday night.

Dulles said he and Menshikov did not discuss any matters of "substance," such as a possible summit meeting.

Stevenson to Visit Russia Next Summer

CHICAGO (AP) — The office of Adlai E. Stevenson announced two-time Democratic presidential nominee will visit Russia for two or three weeks next summer to "educate himself" on conditions behind the Iron Curtain.

A recipe has to be pretty good to win first prize in the Grand National Bake-Off. You'll want your family to try these $25,000 "Accordion Treats"... especially when you can bake them with only three cents worth of electricity.

Electricity for cooking, like electricity for scores of other uses in the modern home, really costs very little when you consider what it does. For example, you can cook electrically for an average of a penny a person per meal.

Stop whatever you're doing for a minute and count up the many ways electricity helps you every day. You'll find it's the biggest gain in your family budget.

ACCORDION TREATS

1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
2 unbeaten eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups sifted Pillsbury's Best All Purpose Flour
1/2 cup chopped nuts, if desired heavy duty foil

Cream butter; gradually add sugar, creaming well. Blend in eggs, vanilla and salt; beat well. Gradually add flour and nuts; mix thoroughly.

Fold 1 yard of foil in half lengthwise. Fold the double foil crosswise into 1-inch pleats to make an "accordion pleated" pan. Place on baking sheet.

Drop a rounded teaspoonful of dough into each fold (dough spreads during baking). Bake in slow oven (325°) 25 to 30 minutes until golden brown. Cool 10 minutes; remove cookies and re-use foil. If desired, sprinkle cookies with confectioners' sugar or frost with an icing. Makes about 4 dozen cookies.

Variations: Substitute a teaspoon of one of the following ingredients for the vanilla and nuts: ground cardamom, caraway seed, anise seed, rum flavoring, almond extract, grated orange rind or lemon rind for 1/2 teaspoon orange or lemon extract.

*Four thicknesses of regular foil may be substituted.

Remember... your electric bill covers two full months of dependable service. Divide your total bill by sixty and see how little it costs daily to live better... electrically.

Williams Signs Record Pay Contract; Looks Forward to 'Last, Grand Slam Year'

BOSTON (AP) — American League managers and players were dutifully warned today to be on guard for "one last, grand slam year" from Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

One of the greatest, oldest, most terrible tempered — and most charming — players in baseball Williams became the highest salaried Thursday when he signed his 1958 contract.

The Red Sox customarily did not disclose any figures, except to say that Ted received a raise over last year. But the salary was estimated to be about $125,000 — highest in the game — and possibly highest in baseball history including an attendance percentage deal Williams reportedly insisted on with Red Sox General Manager Joe Cronin.

The 39-year-old Williams, five-time American League batting leader, was closeted with Cronin for nearly an hour and a half. When he emerged, a determined set on his face seemed to confirm that he had bartered well.

Cronin admitted as much. Asked why the conference had lasted so long, he quipped, "You ought to hear Ted. He's a hard man. He's a real financier."

"I'm going to do my level best to justify the contract," Williams told a host of newsmen at Fenway Park. "I will play as hard as I can and as hard as I always have. I look forward to one last grand slam year in baseball."

However, Ted would not say whether he intended to retire after this season, his 17th with the Red Sox. Nor did he elaborate on any future plans.

Williams, tanned, smiling and completely charming, said he wanted to end his long-standing vendetta with Boston sportswriters.

"I'll say this in all sincerity," he said. "I'll be as nice as I can to all you guys. And if I don't hustle, get on me. But the first dishonest thing you guys write about me—something that will throw me off and affect my game or the team—don't come around me. It would be wonderful to have a great summer with you guys."

Hank Aaron Fed Up With Public Speaking

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A foot-sore and weary Hank Aaron, slugging outfielder for the world champion Milwaukee Braves, vowed today his public speaking days are over for good.

"Silent" Henry, who traveled thousands of miles as a public relations man for a Milwaukee brewery in the off season, said his tour on the rubber chicken circuit was a "great experience, but I'll never do it again. It just takes too much out of you."

The phlegmatic National League batting star said the public appearances he made were things he always wanted to do, but he added "I'm glad it's out of my system. I'm tired."

"Everybody I met was swell to me, but I just don't like to talk," Aaron said.

Aaron said that he didn't have to take any special speaking courses before he set out on his jaw-breaking trips. He just packed his bag and was gone.

"All I had to do was talk about baseball. It got to be routine because everybody asked the same questions," he said.

"At first I was a little nervous because I didn't know what to expect, and I had never done any speaking before. But, you build up kind of a set speech after awhile and the words just roll out," Aaron said.

The biggest thing he learned hoppedscotching the country was he isn't an after dinner speaker, Aaron said.

"I'm not trying to be modest or anything, I just haven't got it in me. I'm not funny, I don't know a lot of stories, so I'm just going to spend my time from now on relaxing and enjoying my family," he said.

As yet, the National League's Most Valuable Player hasn't signed his 1958 contract, but he said he isn't too concerned about it.

By United Press
When Dwight (Dike) Eddleman hit the headlines as a high school basketball star at Centerville, Ill., he became the most-sought after prep athlete in the Midwest. He decided to stay close to home and enrolled at Illinois where he became one of only four Illini athletes in history to win nine varsity letters. Among other things, he bagged six Big 10 high jump crowns, placed second in the 1948 Olympic high jump, punted an average of 43.3 yards on 52 kicks for the football team in 1948 and scored 329 points for the basketball team during the 1948-49 campaign.

Whatever happened to Dike Eddleman? Today he's still in his home state, serving as public relations supervisor for the Central Soya Co. at Gibson City, Ill.

New Haven and New Shawneetown in Finals District Grade Tourney

New Haven and New Shawneetown will battle for the championship of the district grade school basketball tournament this evening.

The all-Gallatin county final was set up by New Haven defeating Old Shawneetown 57-28 and New Shawneetown getting a 2-0 forfeit from Galatia in the semi-finals Thursday.

Bad driving conditions were responsible for Galatia school officials making a decision to not make the trip to Shawneetown Thursday. "We had many reports of cars stalled along the roads and thought it advisable to not start out with a bus load of students in he extremely bad driving conditions," N. R. Gullie, Galatia principal, said this morning. "Galatia is eligible to play for consolation honors and the chance to advance to regional competition and, weather permitting, will be active in tonight's session."

Major League Executives, Players Accept Air Risk As Occupational Hazard

NEW YORK (AP)—With a few exceptions major league executives and players accept the risk of airplane crashes as an "occupational hazard."

A United Press survey made that clear today in the wake of Thursday's crash in Munich which killed seven members of the Manchester United soccer team. National League teams must fly, of course, to meet a schedule which includes two West Coast teams. American League teams also are increasing flights.

Baseball's most notable non-flyers are the New York Yankees, who have made only six flights in the last three years and have none planned for this year. No change in their policy is anticipated as long as George Weiss is general manager.

Three National League teams—the Dodgers, Giants and world champion Milwaukee Braves—will make virtually all their trips by air this year. In the American League, the Detroit Tigers will fly, except between Washington and Baltimore. The three N. L. teams will travel about 20,000 miles in the air.

Both leagues are prepared to cope with the problem of an air disaster. The A. L. has had a "disaster plan" in operation since last Dec. 5 and the N. L. has an informal agreement. The A. L. plan provides for a pool of 84 players (12 from each team) from which the stricken club would be rebuilt.

Ten years ago it was a novelty for a major league team to fly but expansion west and night ball worked a slow but steady change. No big league team ever has been involved in a plane accident of major proportions.

E. J. (Buzzy) Bawasi, a vice president of the Dodgers, made that point when he commented on the Munich disaster.

"I feel terribly sorry about this," he said. "I met some of the players in Montreal. The Dodgers, however, plan to fly on their trips. It's the only way we can keep our schedule. After all, there are more train, bus and auto accidents than airplane crashes."

Prescriptions cannot be mass produced on assembly lines. Each one must be compounded individually because it is specifically written for one person. For that reason it usually shortens sickness time.

Invariably the medicines in a prescription give relief much more quickly than patent medicines or home treatments. No Excuse GREENWICH, Conn. — (UP) — Mrs. Anne Dean thought it was okay to drive behind a policeman as long as she didn't pass him but she was arrested by the officer on a speeding charge anyway. The officer explained that he was exceeding the legal limit because he was hurrying to an accident.

THE STORY: A detail of troops escorting Connie Ashland to comfortable quarters catches up with Ward Sebastian's mule train, carrying Army supplies. The troops are expected to quell an uprising of Modocs led by Captain Jack.

XIII

Lieut. Philip Ashland, men quartered and secure for the night, saw his sister sitting there, looking up at the tall, saddle-leaned man beside her, smiling over some remark that had been made.

The tall man turned, and recognition came to both he and Phil Ashland. Last evening, back in Shasta Valley, these two had mildly argued the rights of a military camp set across a trail and a pack train traveling that trail.

"Lieutenant," the tall man said, "we meet again. I'm Sebastian, and yonder old catamount is Sam Lester."

Philip Ashland, here. And my sister, Constance.

Ward Sebastian nodded. "Your sister and I met in Yreka last night."

"Oh, yes, of course. She was with Captain Dillon when he—well—" Sebastian chuckled briefly. "Captain Dillon and I did argue some. But everything came out all right."

After dinner, they went back into the other room, where Phil Ashland began getting into his overcoat. "I want to see how my men are making out, cooking their own rations on that bunkhouse stove. I won't be long."

Sam Lester also reached for his coat. "I'll be takin' a look at the mules, Ward. Then I'm turnin' in. Morning comes early to my old bones." He bobbed his grizzled head to Connie Ashland. "G'night, Ma'am. Get your beauty sleep."

Not that you really need it, of course."

She smiled at him. "Good night, Sam."

Ward Sebastian chuckled as the door closed behind old Sam. "You've made a conquest, Miss Ashland. With most women, Sam finds it hard to even be polite. From what I've been able to observe, the two things Sam seems to have the least use for in this world, are women and the military."

She seized the opening quickly. "You're not exactly fond of the military yourself, are you?"

"I wouldn't put it that way. I respect the need of having the military about."

"While I," she retorted, "doubt the military is finding any great pleasure in being here. Certainly Captain Dillon and his men must be finding little to cheer about, having to make camp along the trail on a night like this."

Sebastian shrugged. "For that, Dillon's men can thank their captain's stiff neck. You may remember me arguing the point with him last night, insisting on an early start so I could reach this ranch. If Captain Dillon had been willing to accept the word of a civilian, he'd be sharing this comfortable fire with us."

She was watching him, studying him. His glance was fixed on the fire, his chin jutting slightly as his teeth clenched his pipe stem, and little knots of muscles bunched at his jaw corners. He was sober, frowning a little.

"You really are bitter at us aren't you?"

"No." He shook his head. "The military can't help being here. They're under orders. But they are the gun aimed at the head of the Modocs. Put it that the military is symbolic of what some people feel is unjust oppression."

"You mean our sympathies are with the Indian and against your own people?"

He shook his head again. "It's not that simple. Sometimes I almost wish I could be all one way or the other. A few days ago I helped bury several men I've known well, victims of a surprise raid by some of the wilder Modocs. These were people of my own kind of blood, and at the time I was very bitter, hating all Modocs—all Indians. Later, however, when I'd cooled off some and began totaling up everything—well—"

"Totaling up, what?"

"Miss Ashland, you mean you've never heard of Ben Wright and his gallant crew?"

"No, I never did."

"I'll tell you, and let you define real savagery. There was to be a feast between the white man and the Modoc. This was all the white man's suggestion, and he would furnish the food. Only, the food was to be charged with strychnine poison, and—"

"Oh, no—no!" exclaimed Connie Ashland, color draining from her cheeks. "Not such a thing as that! It couldn't have been—"

"Yet it was!" said Sebastian grimly. "As in all such things, there are claims and counter-claims. Yet it is a matter of record that one Ben Wright, leader of the whites, laid in a big supply of strychnine before leaving Yreka for the meeting with the Modocs."

"You, you're trying to tell me," she said tightly, "that the Indians ate the poisoned food—and—?"

"No. Something about it all aroused the suspicion of the Modoc chief, and he ordered his people not to touch the food until the whites had begun to eat. Realizing that their fine scheme of wholesale poisoning had misfired, Wright and his crowd opened up on the Modocs without warning and shot them down like rabbits. Wright, himself, killed the father of Kentipoo, or
